

Free Service for Parents to Help Their Students Plan Smart for Life After High School

As students progress through high school, the pressure builds to help them discover a path for success after high school graduation. Is college, a certificate or a skilled trade right for your student? What should students do when, and what can parents do to help them with those tasks? How does all this affect family finances?

A free service from Iowa Student Loan® can help parents with all these questions and more. By registering for the SP³ – Student Planning Pointers for Parents® service, you will receive twice-monthly emails providing tools, tips and conversation starters for your students in eighth through 12th grades.

All information is based on grade level and is appropriate for the time of year. Written and compiled by the professionals at Iowa Student Loan, a nonprofit committed to helping families successfully pay for education after high school, the emailed information is designed to be simple but effective.

In addition, registered participants are entered into quarterly drawings for contributions to a College Savings Iowa 529 plan.

Interested parents can sign up now at www.sp3.org.